

John is a software-engineer and has been working in the technology sector for over 15 years. He currently resides in Illinois. He has always been passionate about coding and has contributed to numerous projects, including a popular mobile app that streamlines project management for small businesses.